

Western Reflections donates used printer cartridges to Guild Elementary School recycling program

Pictured: (L to R) Lance Taylor, Principal of Guild Elementary School accepts a large box of used printer cartridges to recycle from John Pettis at Western Reflections.

Western Reflections and Guild Elementary School have teamed up to not only help the environment, but also help provide necessary computers for students.

"We started the program of recycling all types of printer cartridges with a collection box in our school lobby," said Lance Taylor, Principal of Guild Elementary School. "In just one year, we were able to recycle enough cartridges to buy two new computers for our school."

"When we were contacted by Western Reflections last fall to see if we were interested in accepting their larger copier and printer cartridges as part of their company's commitment to recycling, we were elated," added Principal Taylor.

"We were referred by our local supplier, Tennessee Laser Express," said John of Sales, Marketing and Distribution for Western Reflections. "It just made sense, both from an environmental and civic responsibility aspect; it is a win-win for everyone."

"As we begin another new school year, we want to challenge all of the businesses in Sumner County to contribute their used printer cartridges or seek out other ways to help our local schools," added Pettis.

About Western Reflections
Western Reflections, based in Gallatin, Tennessee produces high-quality doorlights and injection molded frames for the door industry. They are a wholly owned subsidiary of ODL, Inc. of Zeeland, Michigan. For more information about Western Reflections please visit www.western-reflections.com.